

Table of content

Preface 9

MAREK BIELECKI

Counteracting domestic violence in the perspective of constitutional and human rights axiology 11

- 1. Introduction and terminology 11
- 2. Constitutional model of family rights protection 26
- 3. International standards in the scope of family protection and counteracting violence. 32
- 4. National solutions in the scope of counteracting domestic violence . 42
- 5. Comparative perspective – models of family rights protection in selected countries 49
 - 5.1. Austria 49
 - 5.2. Germany 50
 - 5.3. Spain. 51
- 6. Conclusion 52

EUKASZ POHL

Countering domestic violence in criminal law. 63

- 1. Introduction 63
- 2. The notion of domestic violence and the criminal law notion of violence 64
- 3. Domestic violence as a behaviour prohibited under penalty, analysis and evaluation of the current legal situation 94
- 4. Measures of criminal law response to an offence of domestic violence – analysis and evaluation of the current legal situation . . . 102
- 5. Conclusion 109

BARTOSZ MAJCHRZAK

Countering domestic violence in administrative law 115

1. Introductory remarks and the scope of the administrative-legal regulation	115
2. Sources of administrative law on counteracting domestic violence	120
3. Axiology of the UPPD Act provisions as the essence of the impact of the public administration	123
4. The scope of public “tasks” comprising the counteraction of domestic violence	125
5. Legal forms of action to implement tasks related to counteracting domestic violence	134
5.1. Introduction	134
5.2. Forms of action of a general nature	135
5.3. Forms of action of an individual nature	143
6. Legal ties (relationships) between actors performing tasks related to counteracting domestic violence	153
7. Evaluation of current solutions and proposals for changes	160
8. Conclusion	164

NINA MACIEJCZYK-KRYSIK

Prevention of domestic violence in family law 173

1. Introduction	173
2. Terminological remarks	174
2.1. Defining the terms “domestic violence” and “family violence”.	174
2.2. Definition of the term “family”.	177
2.3. Definition of the term “child”	180
2.4. The best interests of the child clause in the context of preventing family violence	181
3. Prevention of family violence under the Family and Guardianship Code	184
3.1. Violence as a reason for the guardianship court to interfere with parental rights	185
3.2. Violence as a prerequisite of at-fault divorce	202
4. Violence as ground for removal of a child from his or her family pursuant to Article 12a of the Act on Counteracting Domestic Violence	203
5. Conclusion	210

MICHAŁ PONIATOWSKI

Counteracting domestic violence as part of the collaboration between public and non-public entities 217

1. Introduction 217
2. Historical outline 219
3. Subjective aspect 228
4. Material aspect 235
5. Formal aspect 244
6. Specific issues 250
7. Evaluation of existing solutions and proposals for change 252
8. Conclusion 256

PAULINA BANASZAK-GRZECHOWIAK

Counteracting domestic violence in the criminal perspective of the court practice 267

1. Introduction 267
2. Prohibited acts that can be included in the scope of behaviours constituting domestic violence 272
3. Diagnosis of the scale of domestic violence in Poland 272
4. Mechanisms functioning in the Polish penal law due to which courts adjudicating in criminal cases can counteract domestic violence 281
 - 4.1. Penalties 282
 - 4.2. Preventive measures 286
 - 4.3. Penal measures that can be adjudicated by the court against a domestic violence perpetrator 292
 - 4.4. Principles for adjudicating penal measures referred to in Article 39 section 2b of the Penal Code and Article 39 section 2e of the Penal Code 299
 - 4.5. Modifications of principles concerning adjudicating probation measures against domestic violence perpetrators . . 304
 - 4.6. Probation obligations 305
5. Conclusion 317

KONRAD BURDZIAK

Counteracting domestic violence in the criminal perspective

of the public prosecutor’s practice 325

- 1. Introduction 325
- 2. The aim of the paper and research method 329
- 3. Legal analysis with a particular consideration of de lege ferenda postulates 331
 - 3.1. The basis for undertaking measures by public prosecutors in the scope of counteracting domestic violence 331
 - 3.2. Sources of information constituting grounds for undertaking measures by public prosecutors in the scope of counteracting domestic violence 338
 - 3.3. The manner of undertaking measures by public prosecutors in the scope of counteracting domestic violence 343
- 4. Potential limitations in the scope of the possibility of introducing proposed legal changes 350
- 5. The possibility of using algorithms in counteracting domestic violence 351
- 6. Conclusion 354

Summary 359